

Program Duration: 1 Day

Location: Camp Joy

Facilitators: Lisa Nack

Overview:

Leadership-in-Action is a 1-day workshop that provides participants the opportunity to explore and put into practice the skills and tactics of the Team Learning Wheel, the cyclical practice of reflecting, connecting, deciding and doing. A key role of a leader is to keep the wheel moving.

Description: Through hands-on experiences, discussion and reflection in a unique outdoor setting, Camp Joy, Leadership-in-Action will offer participants the opportunity to:

- Explore the conditions required to create an environment that is open to exploration (learning).
- Utilize a “Trigger List” to scan for possible ideas and issues to consider in the pre-planning and formal planning stage of a project or initiative.
- Practice the “art of reflection” -- uncovering beliefs and assumptions that inform our decisions, influence our actions, and impact our results.
- Understand the importance of “shared meaning” in creating and refining vision, goals, or objectives.
- Practice facilitating “joint planning” (decision making) that will increase clarity and alignment during implementation.
- Experience how time spent in reflecting, building shared meaning and jointly planning turns coordinated action (doing) into a polished initiative.

Audience: Leadership-in-Action is designed for leaders interested in improving their team and organizations strategic capability, long-term performance, competitive edge, and ability to support innovation.

Facilitators:

Lisa Nack is the Corporate Program Manager for the Leadership & Development division of Camp Joy where she utilizes her expertise in experiential learning, team and leadership development, change management and facilitation to design and lead corporate programs. Prior to her coming on board in 2010, she was a managing partner in the Nack-Reuther Group, an organizational development practice focused on enhancing individuals, teams and organizations ability to achieve results. Over the past 20+ years, Lisa has had the opportunity to partner with a variety of organizations including Cincinnati Bell, E.W. Scripps, Time Warner Cable, Mercy Health Partners, Procter & Gamble, Xavier University, University of Dayton, Wright State University, Sinclair Community College, Council on Aging, University Hospital's Emergency Medicine Department, Kettering College of Medicine and Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce. She holds a MS in Counseling and an MBA from Southern Illinois University-Carbondale.